Start by defining your goals—enhancing business awareness, launching a new product, or addressing a specific issue. Next, identify your target customers and understand their demographics, preferences, and pain points. This knowledge will help you tailor your messages to resonate with them effectively.

Here is a sample communication objectives worksheet for each audience segment, including their primary limitations and the intended outcomes of change.

Objective Component	Explanation	Example
Audience segment	Who needs to make the change?	Married women, currently not using FP, have one child, desire to have more children later.
Key constraint	What is the biggest thing keeping the audience from making the change?	These women believe that nobody else uses FP and worry about what the community would think if they used FP.
Desired change	What does the audience need to change/do?	Believe that others in the community use and approve of FP.
